

KRIŽANKE

At the heart of your experience

A gem from the past...

Križanke occupies the site of a former 13th century monastery complex that originally belonged to the German Order of the Knights of the Cross and was renovated through the years by a number of Renaissance architects. Between 1952 and 1956 Križanke was entrusted to the hands of Jože Plečnik, whose modern approach to architecture had left a significant mark in the centre of Ljubljana already in the 1920s and 1930s. Plečnik created a unique setting for arts events; Anton Bitenc and Viktor Molč continued his work, transforming the monastery gardens into an open-air summer theatre.

Thus, Ljubljana acquired a unique theatre boasting excellent acoustics in the very heart of the city.

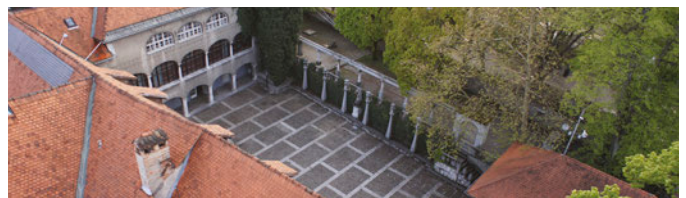

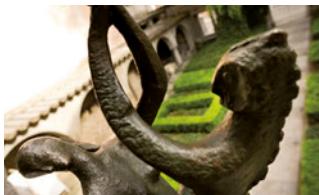

Under its sliding roof that was added later the theatre has hosted the most prestigious of arts events under the auspices of the Ljubljana Festival every summer for the past 60 years.

Anyone who has ever set foot in Križanke knows there is a special, mysterious energy at work here.
